NEW AGREEMENT SUPPORTS IMPORTANT INITIATIVES IN ADDICTION

The Research and Education Foundation (REF) is excited to announce a new agreement with the Norlien Foundation. Signed in June of this year, the two-year commitment will provide educational grants to Family Medicine Forum (FMF), as well as scholarships for family doctors and family medicine residents to attend FMF sessions on addiction.

The Norlien Foundation's goals are very much aligned with those of the College of Family Physicians of Canada (CFPC). It, too, is active in research, education, and continuing professional development. Since it was established in 1997, Norlien has initiated strategic projects in the areas of child development, addiction, and mental health.

We look forward to the new learning opportunities this will create for our members, the positive impact it will have on family practices, and, ultimately, the improved outcomes it will generate for patients across Canada.

FAMILY MEDICINE IN CANADA: HISTORY AND NARRATIVE

Associated Medical Services, a long-time supporter of the CFPC's History and Narrative Program, recently renewed its commitment in a three-year agreement with the REF. Collaboration between the CFPC and Associated Medical Services has been fruitful in delivering on its objective to "develop and sustain the history of family medicine and family practice in Canada through stories of family physicians." A database of these stories has been created, many of which have been published in Canadian Family Physician and retold at annual plenary sessions during FMF. We are especially proud that a series of History and Narrative awards has been established and will continue to be offered through our awards program for years to come. For more inspiration, be sure to visit the Stories in Family Medicine website at <http://www.cfpc.ca/stories>.

TIMING IS EVERYTHING

With FMF 2012 being held mid-November, that leaves only three weeks to Hanukkah and five weeks to Christmas! Whatever your celebration, we can help you along if you stop by College Square in the exhibit hall to visit and bid in this year's Silent Auction. The catalog already includes a Roots leather bag, Crabtree & Evelyn gift basket, Swarovski earrings, KitchenAid immersion blender, Nintendo 3DS with gaming package, original art, and sports regalia. We'll be adding items regularly up until November. So watch the website, make your list, and check it twice ... but beware, it may take more than one bid to win your prize. Remember, each purchase gives twice—once to your loved ones (or yourself), and once to family medicine.
